

THE PRESIDENT'S OUTING

HE SPENDS A PLEASANT DAY AT MOUNT M'GREGOR.

ENTERTAINED AT A DINNER IN THE AFTERNOON AND BY THE HOTEL GUESTS IN THE EVENING—THE PROGRAMME FOR TO-DAY.

SARATOGA, Aug. 20.—The people of Saratoga were a good deal surprised this forenoon to find that President Harrison had actually been in the town and driven through a portion of it in a coach from one railway station to another, accompanied by President Lohnas of Saratoga Township and the Reception Committee. He took the train for Mount McGregor without any delay. At that historic spot he was met by his host, ex-Senator Arkell, W. J. Arkell, B. Arkell, B. Gillam, and others. He remained quietly in his room after his journey, enjoying the magnificent panorama stretching out at his feet, 1,200 feet below, for miles upon miles.

While the President was thus recovering from the fatigues of his journey, Col. Richie, the Postmaster of Saratoga, was mustering his friends at the Mount McGregor station at Saratoga. A special train took them up the mountain side to the hotel where a repast was being prepared, to which they had been bidden in order that they might meet socially the Chief Magistrate of the Nation. The big dining room was beautifully decorated with flags. The tables were arranged as three sides of a parallelogram. The President occupied the seat in the centre of the top table, and the two sides were occupied by guests, of whom there were 116.

It was 2:30 when President Harrison, accompanied by Senator Arkell, made his appearance and took his place at the centre table. On his right were B. Gillam, John Palmer, Hugh Rielly, and W. H. Bockers. On his left were W. J. Arkell, Judge Stover, E. W. Halford, P. Farrelley, and J. U. Francis. Among the others present were: C. A. Lester, Dr. Lewi, Howard Cole, T. C. Turner, Russell B. Harrison, E. M. Harris, M. Tibbets, John Foley, J. M. Marvin, John Warner, E. H. Peters, E. F. Grose, W. A. Swetsor, A. E. Carroll, H. J. Donaldson, J. H. Breslin, S. E. May, S. O. Midbery, W. M. Whitney, J. G. B. Woolworth, J. A. Manning, W. J. Kline, W. Lester, D. Bander, Abraham Smith, R. G. Morris, J. J. Delong, A. Gage, E. Brewer, W. G. Wilkens, J. C. Rosbach, M. Well, W. N. Smith, S. Gillam, D. A. Avery, A. E. P. Howe, Capt. Kenzel, A. Mann, J. Saul, S. Ballin, H. Stull, M. Myers, Jasper Lynch, D. Allen, W. Mumford, M. P. Wilder, W. M. Baums, J. H. Richmond, Edward Ellis, Spencer Trask, A. G. Richmond, G. A. Van Allen, W. Ganor, John W. Voorman, G. H. Loadwicks, David Dun, Samuel Imsul, Andrew Dun, D. F. Ritchie, T. F. Hamilton, J. W. Chatman, A. B. Hansom, W. W. Worden, H. E. Diendorf, Adams Smith, C. D. Thurber, S. Mosher, D. C. Mayne, E. C. Clarke, F. J. Foster, A. J. Fox, D. W. Mabee, D. Lohnas, G. W. McAdam, W. T. Rockwood, A. DeR. McNair, C. E. Mosher, A. M. Hodge, T. P. Argeringer, N. Weller, Frank Jones, John A. Sleichner, A. S. Pease, and Paul Krowtel.

The dinner was a regular country dinner, and the chief charm of the occasion was the lack of formality. The orchestra of the house, composed entirely of ladies, discoursed sweet music, and Lord Wilson, a character of the hill, who says he was on Washington's staff, stood at the window surrounded by a bevy of beautiful girls and received a glass of wine in which to drink the President's health. The ladies, although they could not be present at the dinner in the room, watched the festivities through the open windows and heard the speeches of Senator Arkell and President Harrison with much approval. When coffee was brought on, Senator Arkell made a speech; introducing the President.

President Harrison replied as follows:

MR. ARKELL AND FRIENDS: It was a part of the covenant of this feast that it should be a silent one, not exactly a Quaker meeting as Mr. Arkell has said, because silence there is apt to be broken by the moving of the spirit. That is not a safe rule for a banquet. I rise only to thank your generous host and these gentlemen from different parts of the State, who honor this occasion, for their friendliness and their esteem. We are gathered here in a spot which is historic. This mountain has been fixed in the affectionate and reverent memory of all our people and has been glorified by the death on its summit of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant. It is fit that that great spirit that had already lifted its fame to a height unknown in American history should take its flight from this mountain top. It has been said that a great life went out here, but great lives, like that of Gen. Grant, do not go out. They go on. I will ask you in a reverent and affectionate and patriotic remembrance of that man who came to recover all failures in military achievement, and with his great generalship and inflexible purpose to carry the flag of the Republic to ultimate triumph—recalling with reverent interest his memory—to drink a toast in silence as a pledge that we will ever keep in mind his great services, and in doing so will perpetuate his great citizenship and the glory of the nation he fought to save.

At the conclusion of his remarks the President left the room, followed by the rest of the party, most of whom returned to Saratoga. The guests of the hotel met in the parlors in the evening and gave an entertainment in honor of President Harrison. This was the programme:

To-morrow morning the President will go upon a fishing excursion with Mr. Arkell on a private lake. Returning to the hotel to dinner, he will in the afternoon leave Mount McGregor for Saratoga, arriving there at 4 o'clock. He will be met at the station by a detail of police, followed by Doring's Band of Troy, honorary staff of Saratoga citizens, Saratoga Citizens' Corps, Post Wheeler, G. A. R., the Veterans' and Citizens' Republican Clubs, the Lincoln Club, the Putnam Phalanx of Hartford, Conn., active and honorary members of the Lincoln Club, the Jefferson Club, the Committee of Arrangements, and the village officers in carriages, the President and party. At the Grand Union Hotel an address of welcome will be delivered by the Village President, Mr. Lohnas, to which the President will respond, after which a public reception will be held in the parlors.

BAR HARBOR, Aug. 20.—It has been whispered here for some time that Secretary Tracy had been trying to induce President Harrison to come here during the war ships' stay, and last night at a dinner given to the Secretary and others by Mrs. G. P. Bowler at Kebo Valley, Mr. Tracy announced that he expected the President in a few days. It was learned to-day that President Harrison is looked for Monday next.

THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT REYNOLDS OF BROOKLYN RENEW THEIR YOUTH.

The little frame house at 204 Lorimer Street, Brooklyn, was gayly decorated last night in honor of the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reynolds, and friends came from every direction to congratulate the aged couple and wish them a still longer lease of life. There were many valuable presents.

Three generations of the family were assembled together. One of the grandchildren was christened by the Rev. William George Ivie of Grace Protestant Episcopal Church in Lorimer Street, and then there was dancing, in which Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds led the grand march. A huge wedding cake was cut at midnight.

Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds were married Aug. 20, 1841, at Paterson, by the Rev. Dr. John Duryea of the Dutch Reformed Church. The bride was the daughter of Henry La Rue, and the groom was the son of Austin Reynolds, one of the famous old bank note engravers of New-York, and a descendant of one of the three Reynolds brothers, Huguenots, who came to America long prior to the Revolution, and settled in Connecticut. After the marriage they moved to New-York, and to Brooklyn in 1849, where they have since resided. They have five children, and four grandchildren.

Mr. Reynolds was a compositor on the Tribune when it was founded. He established the first news stand in Brooklyn and was the first meat inspector of Williamsburg. For many years he was in the Brooklyn Navy Yard, and was one of the organizers and original Vestrymen of Grace Protestant Episcopal Church. He was born in Gold Street, this city, Oct. 5, 1818, and cast his first vote for "Tippecanoe" for President. Mrs. Reynolds was born Dec. 15, 1820.
